

RCDA is a membership association of community development organizations committed to addressing the affordable housing needs of Greater Richmond and Central Virginia. Among the activities of its member organizations are the production and rehabilitation of a wide variety of affordable housing, advocacy and coordination of housing programs for people experiencing homelessness, provision of housing counseling and supportive housing services. Membership enables participating organization to more effectively produce and advocate for affordable housing. RCDA member benefits include: speaking with a unified voice for funding resources; increasing awareness of the housing continuum, increasing awareness of member group activities, and providing information and technical assistance to member organizations.
